Founded in 1994, the International Bureau for Children's Rights is an international non-governmental organization based in Montréal, Canada. In 2005, the Bureau was granted special consultative status by the United Nations Economic and Social Council. In the course of the last 15 years, the Bureau has gained credibility on the international stage by focusing its efforts on the most challenging areas of activity, namely,

- Child victims and witnesses of crime
- Sexual exploitation of children (child sex tourism and child trafficking);
- War affected children
- Promoting the Convention, particularly by developing country profiles in order to review the situation with respect to children's rights by country and region.
